SYNOPSIS

A true New Zealand story of a dolphin that captured the hearts of passengers in the 1880s.

This is the heart-warming tale of Pelorus Jack, a rare white Risso's dolphin who delighted passengers over 100 years ago as he guided steamships through the rough waters of French Pass into the calm waters of the Marlborough Sounds. Passengers from around the world, even royalty, came to see him and it is believed he became the first sea creature to be protected by law in any country.

This is the third in a series of true animal stories that bring history to life for young readers.

ABOUT THE AUTHOR

Susan Brocker has written over 50 fiction and non-fiction books for older children and teens, which have been published worldwide. She has a history degree and a love of social history that is reflected in her books. Susan also has a close affinity with animals and lives with her husband and many pets in a lovely old villa on a small farm near Tauranga. Pelorus Jack the Dolphin Guide is the latest in a picture book series based on true NZ animal tales which include Bess the Brave War Horse; Friday the Rebel Dog and Mrs Chippy the Cat.

ABOUT THE ILLUSTRATOR

Raymond McGrath is an award-winning animation director, illustrator, designer and writer who has been working in children's television and advertising for around 20 years. As well as illustrating books for other authors, such as the award-winning The Little Ghost Who Lost Her Boo! and Susan Brocker's true-life animal stories, he has written and illustrated several books himself, including That's What Dragons Do! Raymond lives in rural Auckland with his wife and four children, some cats and a Schnauzer.

STUDY NOTES

BEFORE READING

- Look at the front cover and blurb and answer the following questions:
  - What do you think this book is going to be about?
  - What is a guide?

- Where and when do you think this story is set?
- Can you think of any other animal guides?
- Why would an animal help humans in this way?
- Identify Cook Strait on a map of Aotearoa New Zealand. Explain that people used to travel across Cook Strait via a ferry that travelled from Wellington to Nelson. Point out Wellington, Nelson, the Marlborough Sounds, Pelorus Sound and French Pass and explain that Pelorus Jack got his name because he guided ships between Pelorous Sound and French Pass.

COMPREHENSION

- Do you think Hana is a real character or a fictional character? What makes you think that?
- People loved Pelorus Jack. Some people, such as Hana, saw him as a guardian, appearing in times of need. Others saw him as a delightful, friendly sea creature in need of protection, a tourist attraction or as an important symbol of Aotearoa New Zealand. How do you think of Pelorus Jack?

Endpapers

- What does the illustration on the endpapers (first and last double-page spread) represent?

PP 2–3

- Why has the author described the dolphin as ‘moon-white’ and the water as ‘emerald-green’? What kind of words are these?
- How has the author used alliteration in the first two sentences?
- How does the text and illustration set the scene?

PP 4–5

- How has the author used verbs (action/doing words) to tell the reader that the dolphin is adventurous and playful?
- What is the dolphin looking to find?
- How do the illustrations convey that the dolphin is young, friendly and playful?

PP 6–7

- What is the ‘huge creature’?
- What does the word ‘bow’ mean in this context?
- Which sentence is a simile?
- Which piece of text tells the reader that the dolphin is young and lonely?

PP 8–9

- Why is Pelorus Jack described as a ‘ghostly dolphin’?
- Why did the crew member want to shoot it?
- How do you think the people on board the ship felt when they saw the dolphin?

PP 10–11

- What kind of words are ‘joyfully’ and ‘playfully’ (adverbs)? What purpose do they serve?
- What does the word ‘snubbed’ mean?
- Why did the dolphin prefer steel-hulled steamer ships?

PP 12–13

- Which sentence uses two examples of alliteration?
- What clue in the illustration tells you that the ship is from Aotearoa New Zealand?
- How has the illustrator shown which two people are talking?

- Why did passengers cheer 'when Pelorus Jack leapt from the waves to do a back-flip'?

PP 24–25

- Based on the information in the text on p 24, what adjective best describes Pelorus Jack?
- What is meant by a 'sticky (or salty) end'?

PP 26–27

- Why did people want Pelorus Jack to be protected by law? What effect would this have?

PP 29–29

- How was Pelorus Jack good for tourism?
- Which popular tourist activity in Aotearoa New Zealand today could be said to have developed out of people's relationship with Pelorus Jack?

ACTIVITIES

- It is believed that Pelorus Jack was the first individual animal protected by law in the world. Today all dolphins, whales, seals and sea lions are protected in Aotearoa New Zealand. This means that it is an offence to harass, disturb, injure or kill them. Design a poster encouraging marine mammal protection. Include a title, a main image and some of the following information. There are many ways people can protect marine mammals, including:
  - Not making loud noises around them
  - Not feeding them or throwing any rubbish nearby

On Land

- Staying at least 20 metres away from seals and sea lions
- Keeping dogs on a leash and well away from seals and sea lions

At Sea

- Not circling marine mammals or moving through groups
- Travelling at a very low speed in boats when around marine mammals
- Not swimming with whales and staying away from dolphin pods containing juveniles.
- Some people believe that Pelorus Jack was the taniwha Tuhirangi, in the form of a dolphin. Research to learn more about Tuhirangi and other taniwha, such as Takauere, Karutahi, Kaiwhare, Ureia, Āraiteuru, Hotu-puku, Ngārara Huarau, Haumapuhia, Ngake and Whātaimai. Is there a taniwha associated with your area? Write the tale of your chosen taniwha.
- Pelorus Jack was a tourist symbol, even appearing on postcards. Design your own Pelorus Jack postcard and write a message on the other side, pretending that you have seen Aotearoa New Zealand's most famous marine mammal. Who will you send your postcard to? Don't forget to include the recipient's address, and design a stamp for the top-right corner.
- Research the nine different dolphin species found in the waters around Aotearoa New Zealand. Present your findings on a chart or as Google Slides.
