Sally Sutton is a popular children's book author of junior fiction and picture books, most recognised for her award-winning Roadworks, Demolition and Construction, published by Walker Books. Sally enjoys writing for different age groups, but tries to bring the same qualities to all her writing: a strong plot, lively language, and a big dose of fun. She lives in Birkenhead, Auckland, with her husband and two daughters.

Kirsten Richards is the bestselling children's book illustrator of The Littlest Pilgrim. Originally from the UK, she has been illustrating books for children ever since she left university, many moons ago. Since moving to Auckland, NZ, she has spent time teaching art and design to both adults and children and designing merchandise, souvenirs and fashion garments for children of all ages. She now runs a boutique design and illustration company where she draws, paints and designs to her heart's content. The Miniwings series is her second project with Scholastic NZ, following on from Lucy Davey's Dinosaur Hunting.

Praise for Sally Sutton's Diary of a Pukeko

“This is a delightfully quirky story about growing up, with occasional illustrations and well-spaced text. It includes some funny digs at humans too and we learn a lot about pukeko and their habitat” — The Children’s Bookshop

Praise for Kirsten Richards' Dinosaur Hunting

“Another illustrator might have chosen much more terrifying and threatening creatures, but Kirsten Richards has made her dinosaurs friendly rather than menacing, her soft wash illustrations perfectly complementing the quietness of the story.” — Bookrapt
