Sally Sutton is a popular children's book author of junior fiction and picture books, most recognised for her award-winning Roadworks, Demolition and Construction, published by Walker Books. Sally enjoys writing for different age groups, but tries to bring the same qualities to all her writing: a strong plot, lively language, and a big dose of fun. She lives in Birkenhead, Auckland, with her husband and two daughters.

Kirsten Richards is the bestselling children's book illustrator of The Littlest Pilgrim. Originally from the UK, she has been illustrating books for children ever since she left university, many moons ago. She has spent time teaching art and design to both adults and children and designing merchandise, souvenirs and fashion garments for children of all ages. She now runs a boutique design and illustration company where she draws, paints and designs to her heart's content. The Miniwings series is her second project with Scholastic NZ, following on from Lucy Davey's Dinosaur Hunting.

When Clara and Sophia's Honorary Great-Aunties invite the girls to 'high tea', the girls are very excited. It means getting dressed up in a twirly dress – and wearing a fancy hat and shoes! Those mischievous Miniwings like the sound of 'high tea' too – dinky little sandwiches and sweet treats – but Clara says they're not invited.

Oh really? Does she think 'not being invited' is going to stop those rascally, tiny, flying horses? Look out!

- Book #6 in this delightful series from Sally Sutton
- Each of the six personality-packed, mischievous Miniwings stars in their own hilarious adventure
- Once again, those tiny flying horses (who only come to life when no adults are watching) cause mischief and mayhem!
- Adorably illustrated throughout, in full colour, by Kirsten Richards
- For fans of Go Girl! and The Ella Diaries.

Praise for the Miniwings series

"Miniwings is a terrific new series that I have to rave about. The first two books have just been released and I can't get enough of them. I want my own set of Miniwings!" — My Best Friends Are Books

"The plots are lively and funny and not overly 'girly', and the girls are generally able to get one over on the significant adults in their lives – a guaranteed kid-pleaser." — The Sapling

"The delightfully professional drawings and beautiful rendering of the characters made me want to linger on each page just to soak up its lively line drawings, and carefully controlled colour palette." — Reading Time Australia
